List the titles of the films, concerts, shows, exhibits, lectures and other entertainments you enjoyed most in the past year.

Not many high-profile concerts or traveling exhibits come to Oklahoma. That is not to say we are too "redneck" or busy farming to enjoy culture, as the stereotypes accuse; it simply means we have to travel to do so. I love museums because they remind me there is always more to learn, and I adore films because they let me experience life from different perspectives. These are my favorites from the last year, but many more phenomenal exhibitions and movies come to mind.

The Bronte Family Parish (Haworth, England); The Viking Ship Museum (Oslo); The Assyrian Lion Hunt exhibit (British Museum); Shakespeare's Globe Theatre (London); Kronborg "Hamlet's" Castle (Helsingør, Denmark); Oklahoma City Arts Gallery; The Tower of London; The Imitation Game; Bridget Jones' Diary; Inside Out; The Changeling; The Theory of Everything; Meet Me in St. Louis; Seven; Hotrod; Tuck Everlasting; Troll 2; Big Hero Six; Amazing Grace and Chuck.

Please tell us what you find most appealing about Columbia and why.

I can major in English at any university. Many colleges boast similar class sizes, student-to-faculty ratios, and retention rates as those of Columbia; many offer me charming locations, promising internships, and comfortable living accommodations. What makes Columbia so much more appealing to me than other universities, though, is its attention to Classical education through the Columbia Core Curriculum.

The Humanities are eyes to the past, connections to previous generations who sought enlightenment through The Trivium. A Classical education links the greatest thinkers and visionaries of all time, people like Da Vinci, Shakespeare, and Jefferson, to the learners of the present. For me, it also unites my education with that of my long-time heroes: Louisa May Alcott, the Brontë sisters, and other writers who only were able to compose their masterpieces because they were culturally literate. Columbia understands that the Humanities are also eyes to the future. They are applicable across career paths, useful for doctors, lawyers, professors, engineers, and artists. Everyone benefits from them. I want to see the world for its infinite connections, its beautiful intricacies, and the courses of Literature Humanities, Contemporary Civilization, Art and Music Humanities, and the Global Core programs will aid in that self-discovery.

In my schooling, it seems I have skipped the basics. I read modern literature without remembering it is built upon the groundwork of generations past. I want to study Herodotus, Dante, Aristotle, Boccaccio, Dostoevsky, Ovid, and Cervantes. I want to learn history, art history, foreign language, political science, and psychology. To me, the liberal arts are the most interesting subjects in the world, and there is no place to study them like Columbia. I cannot contain my enthusiasm for a curriculum so rigorous and so worthwhile, and I know I will never be the same because of it.

For applicants to Columbia College, please tell us what from your current and past experiences (either academic or personal) attracts you specifically to the field or fields of study that you noted in the Member Questions section. If you are currently undecided, please write about any field or fields in which you may have an interest at this time.

I love writing now because I first loved reading. In elementary school, reading time was the highlight of my day, the one hour I could delve into the realm of princesses and knights, time machines and hidden treasure. As a child, writing meant exploring all possibilities, believing in the impossible. During this time, I wrote many short stories and poems. I even won a few awards for my writing at the local and state levels, but I was not wholeheartedly invested in the craft. It was not until fourth grade when I read my first classic, Little Women, that I transformed from an avid reader to a devoted writer. Never before had I witnessed a writing style so elegant or met characters so real; never before had I been moved to tears by paragraphs on a page. At that point, I realized literature is a link across generations, that its lessons remain applicable centuries later. I knew then I would dedicate my life to words.

Writing is the basis of who I am. Whether it is in the books I read or works I create, words constantly play through my mind, shaping me along the way. Writing is my therapy. It is natural, vulnerable, sincere, and holy. It is unadulterated, unrestrained passion, a level of emotion and expression that cannot be emulated in any other form.
